

Identify each word group as a fragment (F), sentence (S), or run-on sentence (RS).

1. Controlling the drone from a remote location that few except the most tenacious can find.
2. The three-hour film Patton, however, contains only 30 minutes of music.
3. Buckingham Palace has numerous guards and security systems, nevertheless, a fellow named Michael Fagan managed to break in twice.
4. Because of his experience with the Muppets and Sesame Street, Frank Oz became both the voice and the puppeteer of Jedi Master Yoda.
5. The famous Tyrannosaurus rex fossil "Sue," named after paleontologist Susan Henderson.
6. Mr. Sunday just wanted to drink his milkshake in peace, however, Mr. Plainview swooped in with his extra-long straw and cruelly slurped up the milkshake instead.
7. Al Capone was never arrested for the Saint Valentine's Day Massacre or any of his other more egregious misdeeds, instead, he was convicted of tax evasion.
8. My grandparents bought the lifetime Senior Pass to the National Parks before August 28, 2017, so they had to pay only $10 each.
9. Because the daimyo Nobunaga was fascinated by Western culture.
10. The students who stay up all night, even on weekends, to finish their homework, depriving them of the sleep they need.
11. Igor Stravinsky, who composed such seminal works as The Rite of Spring and The Firebird, also wrote a composition called "Do Not Throw Paper Towels in the Toilet."
12. Her brow furrowing in consternation as the glass beads tumbled out of the graduated cylinder and onto the floor.
13. Miss Clavel seems like an ordinary nun, however, she once exhibited the extraordinary ability of running with her entire body angled approximately 30 degrees from the floor.
14. The famed rivalry between the Los Angeles Lakers and the Boston Celtics, which was perhaps at its most intense in the 1960s and the 1980s.
15. Although Thomas Bergersen's "That's a Wrap" sounds like it's performed by a live orchestra, choir, and pipe organ, the performance actually consists solely of synthesizers and custom samples.
16. To prevent poking a hole in the electrophoresis gel with your pipette, a tragedy that most scientists want to avoid.
17. Michael Crichton originally wanted a career in the medical field, instead he decided to become an author.

18. Slime molds are unicellular organisms, but they can group together to form multicellular plasmodia that release spores during the reproductive cycle.

19. Radiohead lead guitarist Jonny Greenwood has some formal musical training, thus it comes as no surprise that some of his compositions contain nods to Krzysztof Penderecki, Steve Reich, and Györgi Ligeti.

20. Rosalind Franklin, one of the scientists who discovered the double-helix structure of DNA along with James Watson, Francis Crick, and Maurice Wilkins.